

SEANKELLY

Haveles, Kate. "SEE // The New Renaissance Man," Artlog, March 20, 2014.

ARTLOG

SEE // The New Renaissance Man

The artist MeLo-X.

Multidisciplinary, Brooklyn born-and-raised artist MeLo-X reaches back in time to create what is in fact very contemporary art. From an early age, he explored all creative media, recording music and snapping pictures, producing album covers and even dabbling in web design; the artist has expressed that he prefers to let his mind wander across genres and media, keeping his creative sprit always alive. The high cost of cutting edge equipment and programs however forced MeLo-X to turn to vintage cameras, computer software, and music gear, which has gone on to define his innovative work and present him with unique creative possibilities. His music is mainly remixes/covers of contemporary pop, house, and hip hop songs, with smooth electronic accents. Check out a couple of his tracks below.

Recently MeLo-X traveled to Equatorial Guinea with a group of friends and fellow artists; while there he photographed the various locales and people they encountered on 33mm film. These works will be on display at Sean Kelly, with an opening reception this evening 6-8 p.m.

Maxwell's Bad Habits Remix (The Highest), in studio performance by MeLo-X.

Lana Del Rey "Video Games" cover/remix by MeLo-X.