Janaina Tschäpe
Balancing into the Deep

June 26 – August 6, 2021
Artist Salon: Saturday, June 26, 3–6 pm

Sean Kelly gallery is delighted to present Balancing into the Deep, Janaina Tschäpe's second solo exhibition with the gallery. This bold new body of work features the artist's largest canvases to date and exuberant drawings. Richly painted using large scale oil sticks in addition to the water-based pigments she previously employed, it marks a fresh new direction in Tschäpe's oeuvre. This shift in both material and scale allows the artist to "draw" as one would with a pencil or pastel, in addition to painting with a brush, producing a body of work that represents a fundamental move towards larger and more resolute gestures. The artist will be present at the gallery on Saturday, June 26 from 3–6 pm.

Perhaps the most important shift affecting Tschäpe's recent work was brought on by the pandemic, when she left the city to work in nature. Whilst her work has always referenced the natural world, it was primarily through an interior dialogue, in the studio, conjuring memories and associations. Now, physically surrounded by nature, Tschäpe experienced what the German Romantics referred to as The Sublime, the sense of awe or wonder aroused by one's feeling of relative insignificance in the face of nature's vast and grand beauty. Emphasizing the overlap between human nature – emotional turbulence, expression and freedom – and that of the physical world, this body of work is, for Tschäpe, also inspired by the late 18th century German literary movement Sturm und Drang, which exalted nature, feeling, and human individualism.

These new works are informed by the play of color, shape, and pattern found in the environment; observations processed and incorporated within Tschäpe's visual language illustrate how the formal aspects of her paintings intersect with the natural world. In discussing her process Tschäpe states, "Whether feeling unsettled, surprised, or in awe, I can explore how that feeling becomes a gesture, a color, and an expression. In nature, you expose yourself to the uncontrollable, the sublime; you do not switch off the sun, stop the wind, or silence the noises." These new works demonstrate a vibrancy and richness enhanced by the use of the oil sticks creating a dynamic and vigorous presence. The immediacy, conviction and confidence of her vigorous, expansive gestures are demonstrable as Tschäpe engages unrestrained actions utilizing these new vivid and conspicuous materials. She presents a series of works that, despite the anxiety and hardships of the past year, emerge as both forceful and beautiful.

Janaina Tschäpe lives and works in New York. Her work is currently included in a two-person exhibition with Ursula Reuter Christiansen at the Den Frie Center of Contemporary Art in Copenhagen from June 26 to September 5, 2021.
