

SEANKELLY

Editor. "The view from China – in pictures." The Guardian. September 17, 2019.

theguardian

The view from China – in pictures

Fifty galleries from across China and beyond are heading to Shanghai to showcase the best contemporary photography in this year's Photofairs Shanghai. Here are our favourites Cyano-Collage is a form of ink painting collage combining rice papers with photosensitive coating wrinkled and exposed to sunlight to record the lighting and shading on the paper. To create this image, a selection from dozens of pieces of cyanotype photographic paper were reorganized and edited before being mounted on a canvas.

Photograph: Wu Chi-Tsung/Courtesy of Sean Kelly (New York & Taipei)

SEANKELLY

Alec Soth: portrait of a woman at home

Soth's latest project, named after a line in a Wallace Stevens poem, I Know How Furiously Your Heart Is Beating, creates a series of portraits of people inside their homes – the place where they usually are the most comfortable.

Photograph: Alec Soth