Wu Chi-Tsung Joins Sean Kelly

Sean Kelly Gallery, which has outposts in New York and Taipei, now represents Taiwanese artist Wu Chi-Tsung. The artist's work combines the Western tradition of cyanotype photography and the Shan Shui ("mountains and water") style of painting, which dates to 5th-century China. His 2016 series, "Cyano-Collage", features large scale mountain ranges and seascapes. In 2019, he was the recipient of the Liu Kuo Sung Ink Art Award in Hong Kong, and in 2013 was awarded the WRO Media Art Biennale. His work has been exhibited in institutions worldwide, including the National Taiwan Museum of Fine Arts in Taichung, the Long Beach Museum of Art in Los Angeles, CA, and the Museo del Palacio de Bellas Artes, in Mexico City, among other museums. This past summer, Chi-Tsung's artwork was included in the group exhibition "Abstract by Nature" at Sean Kelly's New York gallery.
